

CBI files FIR against Maran in BSNL case

'300 Phone Lines Allotted To Ex-Min Extended To Sun TV'

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: In more trouble for former telecom minister Dayanidhi Maran, the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has registered an FIR against him and BSNL officials for alleged allotment of over 300 high-speed telephone lines to Maran's residence in Chennai which were extended to his brother's TV channel.

CBI sources said that the FIR was filed after its preliminary enquiry (PE) found enough material to proceed with a case against Maran and two BSNL officials — the then chief general manager K Bramhanathan and MP Veluswami.

The fresh case comes as the CBI is wrapping up its probe into the Aircel-Maxis deal case, in which Maran is an accused. Sources said Maran would be called for questioning soon in the fresh case. CBI officials said the PE was registered in 2011, and it was wrapped up in July.

Sources said 323 telephone lines allegedly in the name of the BSNL general manager connected Maran's Boat House residence with the Sun TV office through a dedicated underground cable during his tenure as telecom minister.

The probe had started in 2011, nearly four years after getting complaints that a 'virtual' telephone exchange was allegedly set up at Maran's home to allow data transfer from Sun TV.

The CBI had recommended action to the then telecom secretary in 2007 but the department allegedly did not give its nod in the case, sources said. The CBI finally filed a PE in 2011.

Sources said these lines were not ordinary telephone lines but ISDN lines, capable of carrying huge data, enabling faster TV signal transmission of TV news and programmes across the globe.

The CBI in its report to the telecom secretary had said they were for the use of large commercial enterprises and a hefty fee is charged for them, but Sun TV had got them for free.

Man held for sipping tea 'suspiciously'; HC slams cops

Swati Deshpande | TNN

Mumbai: Slamming the police for detaining a man for sipping tea in a 'suspicious manner' at a roadside stall, the Bombay high court set aside the preventive detention proceedings against the accused.

"This is bewildering. We were unaware that the law required anyone to give an explanation for having tea, whether in the morning, noon or night. One might take tea in a variety of ways, not all of them always elegant or delicate, some of them perhaps even noisy. But we know of no way to drink tea 'suspiciously'," the HC said.

"The ingestion of a cup that cheers demands no explanation.

And while cutting chai is permissible, now even fashionable, cutting corners with the law is not," the bench said.

Vijay Patil, a 49-year-old restaurant owner, was detained by the police under provisions of Section 151 CrPC on February 22 at 11am from a roadside tea stall in Kolhapur. The station diary put the time of arrest at 3.30pm. Patil was then asked by a magistrate to furnish a bond of good conduct before releasing him under section 107 CrPC, which deals maintenance of public peace and tranquility.

The accused then moved the HC challenging his detention and seeking damages.

Prosecutor K V Saste referred to an affidavit filed by the police saying Patil was a hardened criminal with over 100 cases against him and was habitually drawn to criminal activity. However, the bench disagreed with the prosecution, saying the cops could not explain exactly why they found Patil suspicious.

Sexual abuse survivor fined for 'misconduct'

Rashmi Drolia | TNN

Raipur: A panchayat in Chhattisgarh's Kondagaon district has fined a 16-year-old girl for "misconduct" after her parents approached it with a complaint against her teacher, who had been sexually abusing her.

The panchayat ruled the girl had been in a consensual relationship with Radheshyam Netam, the 60-year-old teacher, and blamed her for violating social norms besides warning the two not to meet each other again.

Police said the teacher assaulted her frequently and threatened of tampering with her results if she disclosed it.

The panchayat's attitude forced her to seek help of district collector Vijay Kumar Dhurve, who ordered the teacher's suspension. He formed a special investigation team and asked police to file a complaint. An FIR was registered against the teacher.

"It is a usual practice in Bastar and nearby districts for people to take such serious cases to panchayats instead of approaching the police. They are scared to approach police and prefer to settle the matter within the village," a local resident said.

Dad kills baby for refusing to take medicine

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Mumbai: A 35-year-old vegetable vendor, Jamaluddin Ansari, killed his one-year-old son by beating him with a rubber pipe for not taking medicine in Bhiwandi on Tuesday.

The accused's wife, Naseema, and two older sons, aged 3 and 5, tried to stop him but he refused to listen. In her complaint, Naseema said her sons were coughing and on Monday night, the two older kids took medicine while the younger son Athar refused. On Tuesday, when Ansari again tried to give Athar a dose of the medicine, he refused again.

Police said Ansari fled when Athar stopped reacting. Naseema, with the help of neighbours, rushed the baby to a hospital where doctors declared him brought dead. Police are searching for Ansari.
